There have been several requests for a kind of spray to use on your home grounds shade trees and foliage. It will be less confusing if you will divide your problems in three areas: The chewing insects (beetles,custer pillars, etc.); The sucking insects (Red spiders, aphids, etc); and the third- (leaf diseases). VPI says a general-purpose spray or dust may be the answer to your problem. If you are not sure— a combination dust or spray mixture that shows on the label: Zineb or Maneb for leafspot control; Karathane or Sulphur for mildew; DDT or Methoxychlor for chewing insects Malathion or Pyrethrum for aphids: It is not practical for formulators to mix all of these needed chemicals together for they will deteriorate, so try to recognize the type of injury taking place and pick one of the above chemicals to be included in your spray or dust purchase. Remember that if the mixture stands for a month or two, slightly more material must be used to give satisfactory control.

The annual county-wide 4-H Club picnic was held at Prince Edward Lake Monday, June 8. Approximately eighty 4-H members and adult leaders attended the picnic. The group enjoyed swimming, softball, volleyball, dancing and continually trying to satisfy the large appetites that such an event seems to create. Prince Edward Lake provides very adequate facilities, and they were enjoyed thoroughly by the Appomattox Club members.

FARM NEWS

There are several things the home gardener can do to keep down the onslaught of diseases in the vegetable garden, says J. A. Smith, county agent.

He says to thin young plants to a proper stand to allow room for growth. Over-crowding tends to produce tender, long plants which usually grow slowly, bear lightly, and are more susceptible to disease.

Avoid transferring mosiac (virus). Wash hands thoroughly with soap and water before handling young eggplant, pepper, or tomato plants. The virus which causes mosiac of these crops is prevalent in manufactured tobacco products. Therefore, don't use tobacco in any form when working with these plants.

Keep down weeds. Weeds often harbor certain viruses which attack vegetable crops, and also they harbor insects, chiefly aphids, which transmit the virus to vegetables.

Prevent insects from building up in the garden. Insects not only chew on stock plants, but they also spread diseases from plant to plant.

Use fungicides if foliage and fruit diseases can not be controlled any other way. For use in the home garden, zineb or maneb are good general-purpose fungicides.

Veterans Information

Veterans of Korean service who hold GI term insurance were reminded by Carlton W. Bragg, Officer-in-Charge of the Lynchburg VA Office of savings of some two-thirds in their premium costs that may be had by exchanging the policies for a newly authorized similar type of GI term policies.

The policies which are subject to this exchange and the consequent saving in premium costs can be identified by the code letters, "RS" which preceeds the policy numbers of each certificate. Bragg said some 500,000 veterans of Korean service hold this type of policy and may apply for the exchange.

The principal difference between the new and older types of term policy is that the new kind must be converted to one of the permanent forms of GI insurance before the veteran reaches the age of 50.

This should not prove a hardship, Bragg said, since most veterans with term policies would find term policy premium rates so high beyond age 50 that they would not in any case convert to a permanent type policy before reaching that age.

Full information on making this exchange for veterans with "RS" GI policies may be secured from the Lynchburg VA Office located in Room 317 of the Federal Building.

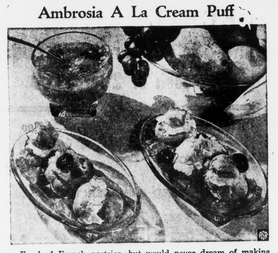
Ambrosia A La Cream Puff



Fond of French pastries, but would never dream of making your own?

You don't have to worry nowadays, not with Cream Puff Mix. This means of ease and perfection in cream puff baking is guaranteed foolproof. To begin your French pastry career, you'll enjoy making Profiteroles Ambrosia, small cream puffs filled with sweetened whipped cream or ice cream and topped with an ambrosia blend of fruits.

Profiteroles, the French name for tiny cream puffs, are served en masse, each guest receiving at least three, and loving them more with every bite!

Use Cream Puff Mix to lighten your work and follow this easy recipe for ambrosia from the Betty Crocker kitchens:

Profiteroles Ambrosia

1 stick Betty Crocker Cream Puff Mix	1 cup sugar
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, lime, and orange	1½ cups crushed pineapple (drained)
1 egg	½ cup sliced Bing cherries
	½ cup diced almonds

Make 40 small cream puffs according to package directions. Combine juice and rind of lemon, lime, and orange with egg and sugar in a saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until boiling. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat and blend in pineapple, cherries and almonds. Cool. Fill small puffs with whipped cream or ice cream. Serve three to a plate topped with the sauce.

Give New Texture To Apple Pie

Whenever you're perplexed about the "just right" dessert to serve at dinner parties or casual get-togethers, settle for apple pie and you'll be sure to please the appetites of all your guests every time you serve it. Known as America's most popular dessert, apple pie rounds off any type of menu perfectly and is a sweet dish you can schedule all year long.

If you like to add a touch of originality to your dessert course, you might try preparing delectable French Apple Pie. In this easy recipe, the apple pie is topped with sugared corn flakes which gives a tasty new texture to an all-time favorite.

French Apple Pie

5 cups thinly sliced apples
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 cups Sugar Frosted Flakes (sugared corn flakes)

Arrange apples in pie shell. Combine sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle over apples. Dot with butter. Crush Sugar Frosted Flakes slightly; sprinkle over pie. Cover. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) about 20 minutes. Uncover; lower heat to moderate (370°F.) and bake about 20 minutes longer. Yield: 1 9-inch pie.

Quick-Fix Summer Kiddie Parties

Summertime is party time for children. Whether it is a small group of playmates or just a tea party for dolly, it's a party and that's what counts.

Entertainment isn't the only reason for an impromptu party. Lots of mothers plan one just to quiet down youngsters who've been playing too hard or too long on a hot day. With all the convenience foods now available a party is little or no trouble. A few easy quick-fix tricks add variety and fun and don't take much time from mother's busy day.

Something good to drink is a must. Since children love soft drinks and soda pop, let them take care of the beverage problem on their own. They can make their own with no mess or measuring-wives. The new instant sparkling drink tablets now on the market. A pitcher of cold water, paper cups or glasses, any of the six flavors of the tablets and they're in business. One tablet dropped into a glassful of water makes a tasty "sprizzling" drink in seconds.

Or, if you want to have a soda bar, let youngsters put ice cream or sherbet into the strawberry, lemon-lime, cherry, orange or grape drink after it is made. The root beer flavor is good in combination with vanilla ice cream. An extra added attraction to mothers is the fact that each drink is fortified with vitamin C, and supplies half the daily requirement for this vitamin.

Then for the nibble department, here are some suggestions. Take plain sponge cake or pound cake and ice it with a packaged frosting mix. This can be done in about ten minutes. Vanilla wafers or graham crackers spread with peanut butter are great. Strawberry jam is luscious on soda crackers and a few shreds of coconut on top add a gay note.

Try a filling of chocolate or maple frosting, or currant jelly between the layers of lady fingers. Ginger snaps teamed with cream cheese and a sprinkling of peanuts have a flavor the
